

EVANS BROWN

Director Of Photography

IATSE local #600

Evans Brown has been Director of Photography for over fifteen years. Born in Indianapolis, Evans attended the School of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston for college, following in his father's footsteps of studying fine art photography and filmmaking. After college, Evans began working on films as a Director Of Photography and Chief Lighting technician. Evans spent twenty years as Gaffer which was his path to become the Lighting DP he is now. While Gaffing, Evans was also shooting short films and developing his skills and looks back thankful for this time and the opportunities to hone his skills. Evans continues to study the art of black and white photography focusing on the human condition as his father did. Evans' love of the photographic image as it relates to light, may have come from his photographic expeditions with his father who would instruct him on composition, light and a way of seeing, which still he carries with him today. From his early work including HBO's The Wire and True Blood, Evans has been fortunate to work in many genres and quality Television. In 2013, Evans and three other founding partners formed Quasar Science, LLC, a long term dream of his to start a company and drive it to success. Quasar is an LED technology and logistic company specializing in high color rendering in LED lighting products. Evans is Los Angeles based with his wife and two young sons and happy to travel.
