IATSE Local 600

JP Lipa has been shooting for over fourteen years having been trained in cinematography at New York University's Tisch School of The Arts. With over twelve features and many tv shows for Discovery Network, History Channel and National Geographic, he has worked in a wide range of genres as well as dozens of commercials and music videos. JP had the rare opportunity of working with Michael Jackson just weeks before his passing. Some of JP's photography is featured prominently in the opening scenes of the world wide release "This Is It". Always up on the latest technology JP is also always up for travel and works both New York and Los Angeles as local.
