Production Sound Mixer

Member, IATSE 695

Mark Steinbeck was born in Hollywood and raised in Sherman Oaks, California. After four years teaching English as a second language in Madrid, Spain, Mark returned to Los Angeles fluent in Spanish and enamored with the Spanish culture. Upon returning, his brother-in-law offered him a job on a movie of the week which had a water unit. An avid sailor, Mark was living off his savings while residing on a sailboat. His brother-in-law told him to pay close attention to the Sound man. Soon, Mark met a Sound Mixer that taught him the skill set for Sound Mixing. He worked his way up from cabling to Boom. His brother-in-law was right: Mark liked Sound. The spoken word as well as written word inspired his career in Sound recording. Location films as far away as Jodhpur, India for The Jungle Book and as memorable as Grumpy Old Men with movie legends Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau marked his early career. Now years later, Television has enabled Mark to build an accomplished career again on the small screen while taking advantage of all Southern California has to offer. Mark has over 16 full seasons of Television series including five full seasons on ABC's hit Scandal. Also an avid sailor, Mark has logged thousands of ocean miles which are as impressive as the amazing projects his resume and history include, covering close to thirty years. Mark is Los Angeles based and always happy to travel.
