Growing up in New York, Tim Silano wanted to be a journalist. But while attending Pepperdine University in Malibu, Tim was able to work with noted filmmaker Robert Greenwald and a passion for film editing was born. Quickly joining the Editors Guild, Silano worked for John Hughes on a number of projects, first as assistant then as additional and associate editor on films such as Mrs. Doubtfire and Apollo 13. A consummate professional with a keen eye for storytelling, Silano has been a collaborator with noted filmmakers Roland Joffe, Norman Jewison and Paul Schrader. Based in Los Angeles, Tim is also happy to travel anywhere.
